

Farewell Letter

To my friends and colleagues at Lyft:

We don't always get to choose when something ends. But we do get to choose how we close it and what we carry with us.

After some well-deserved time off, I've decided to sit down and write this before April closes out. I'm no longer part of the Lyft team as Vendor Lead, and I didn't want to let this chapter end without thanking the people who made it what it was.

Allison Kupers, thank you for believing in me and giving me this opportunity. You are an extraordinary manager with a rare ability to execute and bring projects to life. I wish I had more time to keep learning from you.

Lindsay Schilling, you taught me something I'll carry forever: don't put band-aids on problems. Find the root cause, close things properly, and build solutions that last. That lesson is engraved in me.

To Chris, Bianca, and Caleb, I always knew I could come to you with any question and you'd have my back. To Naiomi and Diana Dorantes, thank you for training me and helping me so much during onboarding, and for being such wonderful people. To Angela Chang and Nick Adkins, you were always there delivering important updates and steady support for all teams. That doesn't go unnoticed.

Tommy, Aristotle once said: "We are what we repeatedly do. Excellence, then, is not an act, but a habit." That reminds me of you. I'm sure your big moment is coming soon, because you are a star. And if you ever want to start collecting vintage stuff or vinyl records, give me a call.

Will, thank you for always raising the bar, for pushing from every angle, for never settling. You are an example. Marcus, see you later, bro. I hope your son and your wife are doing great, I just wish you an amazing year alongside your whole family. Jessica, thank you for being there during my first days at Lyft Business and for teaching me so many things. Corisha, you were my quasi learning partner while Tommy onboarded us. Watching you grow little by little alongside me, and seeing everything you accomplished after, was really something.

Masha Scott, thank you for always being difficult, for asking questions I didn't have answers to, for never settling for a simple response. You have an unusually cool mind.

Andrés Castelán, as I told you before, I think you're a pro athlete at what you do. You truly care about what happens to people, and that's not something you see often in a People team.

Daniela Trujillo, Dani, even though you're no longer at Lyft, you had to be part of this. You are just as important as everyone else here. Thank you for always creating the best environment and the warmest welcomes.

Christian Uriel, watching your growth during this year and change was incredible. Seeing how happy you were while achieving everything you did. Keep being the most diva diva in all of Lyft Mexico.

Mauricio Zavala and Elena, thank you for always supporting me and helping me. I hope I was equally reciprocal to both of you. Karime, thank you for being not only incredibly capable but also for having a huge heart, especially for social causes, the ones society often ignores the most. Always keep that drive to help others.

Miguel Berbeyer, the coolest dude in the office. When I grow up, I want to be like you. Gaby Saucedo, I can say it here publicly: I believe you are the best Workspace Manager Lyft could have in the entire company.

To the Ibex team: Dulce, Gil, Paula Gómez, Chester Lance Claro, Karylle, Fernando, and She. You are incredible. The dedication, the energy, the willingness to always show up and deliver. Keep pushing forward and know that the work you do matters more than you think.

And to Laura García, Courtney Osborn, David López, and everyone else I haven't mentioned by name but who shared the trenches with me: thank you. The list is longer than this letter.

Now, for the sole purpose of being able to express my emotions in the best way possible and to put my heart where my words are, the following lines will be in Spanish.

Samantha Flores, Mi querida Sam. No solamente te considero una gran compañera, también una amiga. Durante todo este tiempo demostraste algo muy importante que muchas veces no se dice, pero siempre está ahí haciéndose. Eres el ejemplo perfecto de que las cosas que se combinan mejoran muchísimo. No es que te sintiera como una hermana mexicana con una gran pronunciación del español y un estilo muy cool. Eres una gran persona, Sam, y tienes una gran carrera por delante. Siempre vas a llevar un lugar especial en mi corazón, porque siempre estuviste ahí para apoyarme y, cuando algo pasaba, siempre estabas ahí para echarme una mano. Cuando vengas a México, te invito unos tequilas y unos tacos veganos.

Larissa Borne, gracias por enseñarme tantas cosas. Eres una persona increíble. Como te lo dije hace mucho tiempo: no somos personas racionales siendo emocionales; somos personas emocionales siendo racionales. Nunca despersonalices tu humanidad y tu corazón de tu trabajo, porque cuando sigues ambos es cuando encuentras las mayores satisfacciones de tu vida. No solamente en lo que haces, sino en las personas a las que tocas con la forma en la que trabajas. Sé que lo haces y lo haces muy bien. Gracias por siempre estar ahí con una cálida sonrisa y aprecio. Te llevo en mi corazón.

Bueno, ya. Antes de que esto se ponga más cursi de lo que ya está: cuídense.

A stylized, handwritten signature in black ink, likely belonging to Dulce, the author of the letter. The signature is fluid and cursive, with a long horizontal stroke at the end.